Richard Villasana

The Mexico Guru

Expert on Mexico Business Practices, Communication and Culture

Bio for Richard Villasana

Richard Villasana, known as The Mexico Guru, is a leading U.S. authority on Mexico business practices, communication and culture. For fifteen years, Richard Villasana has helped U.S. companies and businesses around the world accelerate their entry into Mexico's trillion dollar economy, expand their market and dramatically increase profits. Fortune 100 companies such as Cisco Systems and AT&T value Richard's expertise.

Richard is a sought-after international speaker by universities (University of Houston in Texas, National University in California) and by businesses in the U.S. and other countries (China, France, Mexico, Spain, Belgium, Italy, and the United Kingdom).

He has also been a translator for the United Nations.

He has always had a love of cultural diversity and business. "Nothing is more exciting or powerful than communicating with someone from another country and culture. Doors open and opportunities abound when you show someone you respect who they are. This power is even more evident when focused on business endeavors."

One of your concerns as a college event coordinator may be ensuring that the speakers you bring in are staying current with their material. Richard is constantly working outside the U.S. He is presently researching the maquiladora industry in Mexico. His workshop on leadership and communication was sponsored by the Tijuana Maquiladora Association with attendees from global companies such as Plantronics.

Bring his expertise to your university, college or chapter so your students can benefit from his vast, practical knowledge. One professor explained that he wanted Richard to speak at his leadership retreat so that the student would hear about real-life experiences and discover how their culture is an asset to their future success.

Deans want a top speaker such as Richard who will help their program become more recognized and the preferred choice in their region. Other organizations such as fraternities and sororities want an expert educator who stresses the importance of cultural diversity for students during their time at college and after graduation.

Book Richard for your next student event. Do it now as he has a limited number of dates available for the remainder of 2009. It's not too early to book Richard for 2010 so call or email us today.

Keynotes & Presentations

Book Richard to speak at your next student event whether the topic is diversity, entrepreneurship, business or international business and relations. Here are a few of his topics.

Leadership in the Global Marketplace

This presentation introduces students to the realities of the market place — they are not only competing for jobs with each other but also with a world-wide work force. This presentation will better prepare your students for working in diverse business environments, be they U.S. companies with an international staff or foreign-owned companies.

Diversity Awareness Success for College Students

Students discover the importance of cultural sensitivity in international business relations. They examine cultural differences ranging from initial greetings to stereotypes that can limit their ability to excel in the increasingly multi-cultural work place and diverse customer base.

International Social Networking for College Students

Students learn how to maximize their college experience and develop relationships with their classmates from other countries. They will be introduced to ideas on how to strategically leverage these foundational relationships for future business success.

How to Thrive in the Global Work Place

This presentation explores what employers seek in new hires who are aligned with the company's long-range plans. Students will learn powerful business secrets, from how to make a good first impression to making certain they perform effectively on the job.

Leadership for Hispanic College Students

Hispanic students can be challenged to succeed both in college and in the work place due to their culture. This positive and self-esteem building presentation examines how students can embrace their cultural heritage to reach their academic and professional goals.

Talks can be customized to include certain themes such as Communication, entrepreneurship and leadership in the community. If you want to give a real-life perspective to your students and you want to prepare students to be tomorrow's leaders, then Richard Villasana, The Mexico Guru, is the speaker for you. Call and book him now.

College faculty and administrators require ongoing specialized training to communicate with the increasing number of Hispanic students as well as students from other ethnic backgrounds entering U.S. universities.

"You really impressed our faculty with what they heard and the spirited luncheon discussion. We are expanding as a direct result of our faculty seeing what could be done internationally. You started a foundation."

Dr. Enrique Venta
Dean of the College of Business
Lamar University, Beaumont, TX

Faculty will gain insights into diversity from new and exciting perspectives. They can pass these insights to their college students to better prepare them for the workplace where companies, such as AT&T, promote employees who can help shape strategies to target specific buyers such as Hispanic consumers.
